Training engineering - Tools and techniques for effective training management

FE-11    2 Days (14 Hours)

Description

Training is not an activity that exists independently of all others. More than thirty years of practice and development in the sector have shown that continuing professional training is closely linked to work, the economic situation, the job market and its evolution. In this context, several notions have notably made training evolve: employment, quality, projects... Nourished by these contributions, today, training can no longer be considered as a single activity or even as an end in itself. It is a means which, to be fully used, is divided into several parts: forecasting and analyzing needs, constructing actions, then carrying out and finally evaluating. These combined and anticipated approaches are called training engineering and educational engineering. They are linked to Forecast Management of Jobs and Skills. This session proposes to explore more particularly the field of training engineering, a point of view adopted by the sponsor of a training action and manager of professional training for employees in a company or institution.
